

Asia Pacific COVID-19 webinars on Transfer Pricing and Asian Supply Chains

Asian businesses are vulnerable to the impact of COVID-19, the extent of which remains uncharted. Critical areas of concern include transfer pricing and supply chains as business risks continue to arise from evolving disruptions, tax compliance demands and fiscal stimulus measures.

WTS Global and our member Tax firms in Asia Pacific are pleased to bring two new webinars in May in our ongoing series of COVID-19-related Tax events. This month's Transfer Pricing and Asian Supply Chain topics are highly relevant to C-suite executives and Finance and Tax professionals with interests or responsibilities in Asia and globally.

China's Responses to COVID-19 and the Implications for Asian Supply Chains

Friday, May 29 at 1 pm – 2 pm

COVID-19 has highlighted the vulnerabilities of highly integrated global supply chains. In this webinar, the panellists will discuss key lessons from the pandemic and trends affecting Asian supply chains to guide client companies in reassessing the need for greater resilience in their trade and supply chain systems. They will also highlight China's responses to retain its key position in regional and global supply chains and other Asian country responses to play a more prominent role. The panellists will also discuss critical factors that companies will need to consider as they restructure their supply chains in Asia.
