

Internship Summary at WTS China

Jason Chen (Internship Duration: 4 Jan. – 30 Mar. 2026)

During this internship, I always focused on improving my professional ability, treated every task earnestly, gradually enhanced my professional level in practice, and transformed the theoretical knowledge I learned at school into practical work ability. During the period, I was responsible for translating equity transfer contracts. By repeatedly checking professional terms and sorting out core clauses, I not only proficiently mastered the translation skills of financial and tax legal documents, but also improved my rigor and carefulness, avoiding translation deviations. At the same time, I took the initiative to participate in a number of special research projects, including cases of Shanghai Tax Court and national tax cases, global family offices, and changes in the identification of old and new technology contracts. When encountering doubts, I consulted relevant materials and colleagues in a timely manner. In this process, my research ability, data sorting ability and problem-solving ability were significantly improved, and I gradually formed a clear thinking logic. In addition, I assisted the team in handling matters related to company establishment, became familiar with specific processes and policy requirements, and improved my practical operation ability; I insisted on attending the weekly internal tax training every Thursday, studied professional knowledge earnestly and actively communicated and discussed, which further broadened my professional vision and improved my professional quality and business processing ability.

This internship experience was an important process for the all-round improvement of my abilities. I made great progress both in professional skills and comprehensive quality. In terms of professional ability, I gradually proficiently mastered basic skills such as contract translation, special research and assisting in company establishment from being unfamiliar with work related to taxation and law. My understanding of the trial logic of tax courts and the interpretation of tax policies also deepened continuously, which effectively improved my ability to combine theory with practice and made up for my shortcomings. In terms of comprehensive quality, through handling various practical work, I developed a rigorous, careful and responsible work habit, and my communication and cooperation ability was also improved. I learned to take the initiative to ask for advice and be willing to share, and could cooperate with the team to complete work efficiently. At the same time, I also clearly realized that my ability in the practical operation of global family offices and tax dispute resolution is still lacking, which also clarified the direction for the improvement of my ability in the future.

This internship allowed me to constantly exercise and improve myself in various tasks, accumulate valuable practical experience, and deeply realize the importance of improving my own abilities. Here, I sincerely thank the leaders and colleagues for their help and guidance: the patient guidance of the leaders helped me quickly master working methods and improve my professional ability; the enthusiastic help of colleagues allowed me to solve problems in a timely manner when encountering difficulties, and constantly improve and enhance myself. In the future, I will continue to focus on ability improvement, face up to my shortcomings, strengthen the study of professional skills, apply the experience accumulated and knowledge learned during the internship to subsequent study and work, and constantly improve my comprehensive ability, living up to the trust and expectations of leaders and colleagues.
